MOLD AND CONDENSATION

Water condensation can occur on your skylight interior surfaces if certain conditions exist. Often, it's a warning to you that excessive moisture exists in your home that may facilitate mold growth. Condensation on interior skylight surfaces results from higher moisture content in the air contacting lower temperature surfaces on the glass or frames. The higher your home's interior humidity and lower the outside air temperature, the more condensation can occur.

GLASS CARE

Proper care of your skylight glass is important to gain the maximum effectiveness of insulating, low-e or reflective glass, any of the "Don't" actions listed below can damage the glass surface or destroy the insulating glass seal and may affect the Warranty.

Don't use any petroleum-based cleaners or caustic chemicals on your glass.

Don't use a razor blade, abrasive pads, or putty knife to clean the glass.

Don't use a high-pressure spray nozzle when rinsing your glass after washing.

Do clean glass with a mild dish soap and water. Rinse completely with clean water and wipe dry with a soft cloth to avoid water spots.

Avoid washing glass in direct sunlight for the best results.

Do clean screens by first removing, then washing on a clean, flat surface with a mild soap and water solution using a soft brush. Rinse, Dry and reinstall.
